MAKE CHEEKS LOOK CHISELED

"High-set cheekbones give the face definition, making it look firm and youthful," says makeup pro Michael Marcus, who takes good bone structure by using two tones of blush. Choose a blush two or three shades darker than your skin and swipe it from the center of the cheekbones, directly below the pupils, back to the middle of the ears. Then apply a lighter, skin-toned blush $\frac{3}{4}$ inch higher, overlapping the two shades slightly.

L&S TIP: Mauve paired with lightly frosted pink flatters fair skin, brickly bronze and light peach complement olive skin, and bronze and deep terra-cotta work on darker complexions.
